Describes his domestic life as "happily characterised neither by poverty or riches."

To Caroline Weston

No.75

New Bedford, Mass.. The writer responds sympathetically to the addressee's account of the Boston mob. "Mr. Mack looks upon all this dismal tragedy as political acting" to induce Southerners to vote for the Whig candidate. The writer praises Miss Mary S. Parker, sympathizes with Garrison (although prejudiced against his "apparently illiberal spirit"), delights in Mrs. Maria Weston Chapman's spirit, independence and magnanimity, and is happy that "Mr. Henry Grafton, Chapman cooperates so well in his wife's plans." Asks if the affidavits of George Thompson's "perfidy in England" are forged. The writer refers to herself as a bride and recounts her recent visits. Describes the [redacted] of the Connecticut Valley. Heard Edward Everett give an eloquent address at Amherst.

Deposition.

[Boston?] Testifies that he accompanied Doctor Eleazer Carver to the house of Captain William Bennet in September 1770, and heard Bennet offer Carver the sum of forty shillings a month for the voyage to the coast of Africa; that Bennet answered his protests at the low wages with a statement that the physician on board his ship always attended on board other ships and made much money; states that no agreement was made as to Carver's attendance upon other of Bennet's ships; finds the charges in the account against Daniel McCarty to be reasonable.
